

THE POPE AND AMERICA.

In another column is a dispatch from New York to the effect that 100,000 Catholics in a mass meeting have denounced the threatened excommunication of Dr. McGlynn and protest also against any ecclesiastical interference with American politics. Every American will be glad to realize the fact that the Catholics of America are recognizing the idea that the Pope of Rome has nothing whatever to do with the politics of America.

We do not believe he should have anything to do with the politics of any country, but if other countries are willing to tolerate this interference it is no business of ours. Germany has announced that it will no longer accept any dictation from the Vatican. The United States is getting big enough to run its own Government and superintend its own public policy without any interference from anybody.

Any creed is allowed to erect its churches in America and is granted full civil protection, but we do not propose that any Church shall attempt to direct the course of American politics. The fact that 100,000 Catholics are falling in line with this view of the case shows that they are becoming liberalized in their views and becoming more and more in accord with the broad, progressive spirit of American institutions.

READ AND CONSIDER.

There has been a custom in Nevada practiced by money lenders to evade taxation which evidently is not warranted by law. Instead of taking notes secured by mortgage, they take a deed with a consideration named, and give a bond conditional for a reconveyance of the property, on the compliance with the provisions of the bond. The Courts have clearly held that a deed given to secure the payment of money is a mortgage; that the amount of money secured thereby comes within the general term of solvent debts, or capital loaned or invested. If this be so, there can be no escape from the taxation by those who resort to this sort of subterfuge to avoid the bearing of the legitimate share of the necessary expense of running the local, State and National Government. Assessor Steddard has consulted the District Attorney as to his duties in cases where money has been loaned in this way, and was favored by a written opinion by which he will be governed.—Journal.

Frank Pixley Creates a Scene.

A Los Angeles dispatch of last Friday says: There was a lively scene in the dining room of the Nevada House this morning. Frank Pixley arrived here with his wife and niece. At breakfast they were seated next to a well known tailor here who has a rather peculiar face. Pixley looked at him and frowned so hard that the tailor left the table in a hurry. Then Pixley made the surrounding air blue till the steward informed him that swearing was not allowed.

"Then why do you put me and my family down by this blanked kangaroo?" said Pixley.

He cut up at once, paid his bill and removed to the St. Elmo.

—Rudolf Herro is the largest dry goods merchant in the city of Berlin. He says that before he began to advertise he hardly cleared expenses. The first year he spent $238 in advertising, and his income rose to $7,140; so he went on increasing the amount and his profits in proportion, until at present his advertising bills foot up $100,000 every year.

The above is recommended to the serious consideration of business men. Advertising is like the philosopher's stone, everything it touches turns to gold.

"The fire is out. Mackay goes to Europe, and there will soon be music in the Comstock air," says the Journal. A boom in Comstock mining shares would suit the people better than either Mackay's trip or the promised music.

—The surveyors who are engaged in marking out a line for a railroad along the east side of the San Joaquin Valley are about seven miles north of Visalia, where they have crossed the Kaweah river.
